As the day approaches for the beginning of restoration work on Carmelo Mission, which is next Monday, interest grows. Nor is interest confined to the building alone. Harold H. Newsom writes to the Pine Cone from Oakland, suggesting that measures be taken to save the trees in the Mission orchard. Mr. Newsom has been advised to consult with Father Mestres.

The scheduled adjourned meeting of the city Board of Trustees, which was to have been held on Wednesday night of last week, was not, owing to lack of a quorum. The business to have been transacted will come up at the regular meeting on December 2.

Mrs. Grider and son are going to Selma, Fresno county, about the end of this month. Mr. Grider has taken a position there at his trade of meat-cutter.

Oliver TYPEWRITER Agency. At Pine Cone office. Terms.

Mrs. E. E. Lonabaugh of Sheridan, Wyoming, now sojourning here, has purchased six lots near the ocean on the Scenic Road, and will erect an attractive residence, surrounded by a beautiful garden.

Miss Janet Cobbe came down from Palo Alto last week, and is to remain here several weeks. She is occupying her Ocean Avenue house.

Miss Marian Devendorf has gone to New York, and will shortly start out on the the Orpheum circuit with Mary Marble and others in one of Maude Fulton's one act sketches.

Miss Eva Belle Adams leaves shortly for the southern part of the State, where she will meet her aunt, Miss Kate Miles, who intends to make her home here with Miss Adams.

Among the eighteen California artists who are soon to display their work at the Museum of History, Science and Art, Los Angeles, are William C. Watts, E. Charlton Fortune, William Silva and Detlef Sammann. Fifty paintings will be exhibited.

Hee Haw "Stella" has a new home. Curtis has given up the racing game. The Duncan children are taxing the time of their young lives driving the little beast about Carmel.

Rev. and Mrs Francis G. Williams were made happy last week by having their three boys with them for the first time in three years. Frederick, the eldest, is just out of the aviation service, Ralph was over from Santa Cruz, and Millard came down from San Francisco.

The two upper flats of the Storie building, for the first time in months, are rented. The corner flat is taken by Mrs. Yard and Miss Guichard, and the Vernals, who were in the Wade Stewart house, are next door.

Mrs. Bernice O. Warren and son Tommy are leaving shortly for Santa Barbara, to be away several months.

You are protected by a $10,000 accident bond when you travel in Carmel Garage Stages We are responsible.—C. O. Goold.

A fine little circus, but no place to show. Frank Adams' itinerant nine-people show struck town last Friday. They failed or were unable to obtain a lot permit and could not comply with the sanitary regulations, so the two Fords and a trailer beat it, sans Carmel money.

Mrs. J. G. Hooper and Miss Ursula have been here for a week, the guests of Miss Eliot Boke at the Whalebone cottage.

Leather goods, all kinds, at Holman's, Pacific Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Clarkson Colman are here from Laguna Beach, near Los Angeles, where Mr. Colman has a studio. They have the new Kelsey cottage here.

The Pine Cone will issue three special Christmas Shopping numbers, December 3, 10 and 17. Advertisements and announcements should be in the hands of the publisher at least two days before the date of issue.

The art department of the Salinas High School, with the cooperation of Miss Josephine Blanche, is arranging for an exhibit of oils, water colors, pastels and mono types, during December. A number of local painters will show.

County Auditor A. G. Winckler and County Surveyor Howard E. Cozzens were in town last Saturday on official business. These county officers come around here pretty often lately, and no election near at hand either.

Carmel, Cal., Oct. 21

Mr. W. L. Overstreet,
Editor, Carmel Pine Cone.

Dear Sir:

I am asked to make the following statement, in which I fully concur:

A number of residents of Carmel feel that the present efficient City Marshal, Mr. August Englund, earns a larger salary than he receives; they suggest that all who do so feel, shall pledge themselves to increase his stipend to a more nearly adequate sum by monthly individual contributions according to their several ability, so long as present conditions make the need imperative.

Pledges and contributions in any amount, however small, for the purpose above set forth, will be received by Miss Frances Farrington and at the office of the Carmel Pine Cone.

HABIT

"Ben Franklin is our great example of thrift. He wrote more on it and wrote it better than any other man we know. He began practicing thrift when he was 12 years of age, and he practiced it and wrote on it all his life. He became the richest man in America in his day, richest not only in money but in health, brains, sanity, good cheer, influence. He was a scientist, a business man, a linguist, a diplomat and a philosopher. He always paid his way. He founded the University of Pennsylvania, founded the first public library in America, organized an insurance company, pretty nearly captured the lightnings, invented spectacles, manufactured the first cook stove, went to France and borrowed money on which Washington fought the War of the Revolution; and the basis of all the strength and excellence of Benjamin Franklin lay in the fact that very early in life he acquired the habit of thrift.

"Thrift is a habit. A habit is a thing you do unconsciously or automatically without thought. We are ruled by our habits. When habits are young they are like lion cubs, soft, fluffy funny frolicson little animals. They grow day by day. Eventually they rule you. Choose ye this day the habit ye would have rule over you. The habit of thrift is simply the habit which dictates that you shall earn more than you spend. In other words, thrift is the habit that provides that you spend less than you earn. Take your choice."—Elbert Hubbard. Start now. Buy W. S. S.

Correspondent Says "Strange Blight Seems to Fall on Honest Efforts"

Carmel, Cal., Nov. 19

W. L. Overstreet,
Weekly Pine Cone,
Dear Sir:

Carmel, at the present moment, looks to me like nothing so much as a barefooted man, standing in the sand, shoes dangling before him, begging the privilege of buying—and mysteriously not allowed to do so. Mysteriously. That was the word I used. You see, I belong to the sex which does not understand business. Or politics, either. I heard you. Neither business nor politics. In the course of a long and fairly stupid life, I have been told that so often that now I beat them to it. I do not understand. I cannot understand. I shall never understand. Born that way, poor thing! On this platform let us proceed.

Some time ago, early in the war (I mean the World War this time) when the U. S. government had stopped all public works, and therefore Ocean Avenue couldn't have been paved at the time if there'd been a majority in favor of it, I attended a sort of mass meeting where all us common people who don't understand crowded into an assembly of the Trustees to speak out what we thought we wanted in the way of street improvement. The Trustees expressed themselves as perfectly willing to give it to us if they only knew exactly what it was.

They must have been sincere. They are intelligent men. They were selected by the votes of a majority, their acceptance of office was a pledge that they will carry out the will of that majority. I do not believe that they would substitute for that will private opinion or prejudice, much less anything like spite. That's why we were asked to shout right out in this meeting and tell what it was we wanted most. We did. We yelped in a confiding chorus that we wanted streets. I remember that when it came my turn I even went so far as to say that I would circulate any petitions needed for streets where I was concerned.

But the city government proved so active in the matter that my work was not needed. They went to the expense of a circular letter to the taxpayers instead. Yet a strange blight seems to fall on all their honest efforts. Nothing came of it. We still had a town to be ashamed of, one for which we habitually apologized to outsiders. And the outsiders mostly said, "Incorporated, did you? Well, what did you expect? Every little fool town has to go through about so much of it—like measles and whooping cough in a baby." (I have provided for not knowing what they meant by this when I told you I understood neither business nor politics.)

To return to our barefoot man, wiggling his toes in the sand, for some reason unable to buy shoes with perfectly good money which he is willing to spend. The footgear dangled before the poor wretch came this Fall in the shape of Eighth Avenue, Monte Verde and Canino Real. Heavens, how good those practicable roads look to some of us? We go and drive or walk on them when we have'nt the time to spare, and they're not taking us in the direction we need to go. They roused the hope that we might have roads enough to actually get to our homes in almost any quarter of town without wallowing through sand sloughs or bumping over exposed roots. Public spirited property owners on Carmelo, Dolores and Thirteenth circulated petitions for those streets. Everybody said the time to move in the matter was when the contractor was here, and at work.

But the rest of a petition is getting someone to receive it. The head of our Board was out of town. At a regular meeting of the Trustees the question of streets was held over until he should return. Time pressed, however, and a special meeting was urged. There are five members of our Board. It takes three for a quorum. But our Chairman had said before he left that if there was any doubt of the Board being able to assemble three members at a special session to consider this important matter, he would himself return to Carmel for the occasion. For some reason the two members of the Board who are in favor of street improvement, and wanted this petition read and passed upon, got the assurance that the other members would be able to attend, and there seemed no reason for putting him to the trouble and expense of coming back for it.

The night arrived—but not the members of the Board, outside of the two who were trying to get the street petition passed upon. They were there. Other people were there. There was no great distance or raging torrent to account for it. The situation stood simply that two members of the Board known to be in favor of street improvement were present; two not known to be in favor of it were absent. Nor could they be found by those sent to hunt them up and see what was the matter; so no quorum was had. I am told that if you were cynical enough to trke the thing on the low level of politics, and suppose that these two absent members did'at want to be at the special meeting, held to consider petitions for street improvement, their willfully absenting themselves would be called filibustering. Nice long word—but to me, anyhow, it doesn't mean anything. And the Senate has got it about used. I'd just as soon omit it from Carmel.

No. It is unthinkable that members of our city government should object to a majority of the property owners on any street taking their own money to improve that street, which yet remains the property of the city. I may not understand business, but I am sure such a proposition is one any business man would jump at. Maybe public business is different, or maybe the city fathers are jumping, only some of them have missed the direction and are jumping backward.

Highlands Notes

Mrs. Elizabeth Bigelow arrived from Santa Barbara last week to spend the winter in her beautiful new residence at Carmel Highlands.

Mrs. Wellington Clark is spending a few weeks in southern California, where she made her home before coming to the Highlands.

Miss Blanche Wilson of Frankfort, Kentucky, visited Mrs. R. A. Peckham at Carmel Highlands for a few days last week. Mrs. Peckham is a Kentuckian herself and is always delighted to meet folks from her native State.

Before next summer it will be necessary to erect more bungalows connected with Highlands Inn. Even now at now at times the demand is greater than the supply.

The Wonders of America

By T. T. MAXEY

THE MOST POWERFUL LOCOMOTIVES.

AT the time of their completion, the locomotives used for hauling the long, heavy coal and other trains over the steep railroad grades in the mountains of Virginia were the most powerful in the world.

The enormous size, weight and power of these leviathans of the rail are positively astounding. Each engine (and tender) weighs almost 900,000 pounds, is considerably more than 100 feet in length, has 20 driving wheels, is fired by machinery, exerts a straightaway pull of 176,000 pounds and, 'tis said, will haul any load that the coupling pin will hold.

The boilers of these giants on wheels are about 9½ feet in diameter. Each boiler contains 381 two and a quarter-inch tubes, which, placed end to end, would reach almost two miles; also seventy 5½-inch flues, having a total length of more than a quarter of a mile. The fire boxes are 15 feet long and 9 feet wide.

The shipment of these large locomotives from the point of construction to the point of service presented an unusually peculiar and difficult problem requiring great care and attention, for the reason that the tracks and bridges of the various railroads over which they had to move were not, in all cases, built to withstand such tremendous weights. They were shipped in a partially knocked-down condition and approximately two weeks were required to move them from Schenectady, N. Y., to Princeton, W. Va. Three cars were necessary to carry the loose and detached parts belonging to each locomotive.

SMALL PACKERS OPPOSE LICENSE

Cincinnati meat packers in drawing resolutions against the licensing of all packers doing interstate business, brought attention to the fact that the proposed legislation embodied in the Kenyon and Kendrick bills, if enacted, would have a tendency to drive hundreds of small packing firms out of the field of interstate operations. This would be the preference forced upon them as against operating under a licensing system which would be a continued menace of interference.
